JAYOTI VIDYAPEETH WOMEN'S UNIVERSITY HOSTS SUCCESSFUL BLOOD DONATION CAMP TO PROMOTE LIFESAVING INITIATIVE

A SIGNIFICANT BLOOD DONATION CAMP WAS ORGANIZED AT THE JAYOTI VIDYAPEETH WOMEN'S UNIVERSITY IN COLLABORATION WITH RE-LIFE BLOOD CENTER, JAIPUR, AT THE UNIVERSITY AYUSH HOSPITAL. THE CAMP WAS INAUGURATED BY THE HON'BLE CHAIRPERSON MADAM, MRS. MITHILESH GARG, WHO CUT THE RIBBON TO MARK THE BEGINNING OF THIS IMPORTANT EVENT. THE UNIVERSITY'S ADVISOR AND CEO, MR. VEDANT GARG SIR, AND REGISTRAR DR. HEMA BAFILA MAM WERE ALSO PRESENT AT THE INAUGURATION.

While inaugurating the camp, Mrs. Mithilesh Garg stated, "Blood donation is a noble act that plays a crucial role in saving lives. We must all take it as a responsibility." She further emphasized that the act of donating blood is not only a source of personal satisfaction but also a significant means of serving society.

Dr. Hema Bafila, the university's registrar, the first to register and donate blood at the camp. Sharing her experience, Dr. Bafila said, "Donating blood is a noble act. I want to inspire my students and colleagues to participate in this virtuous work." Her action served as an inspiring example for all attendees.

The blood donation camp witnessed enthusiastic participation from faculty members, students, and other staff members from various departments of the university. Everyone pledged to donate blood and contribute to this noble cause. Ayushi Pathak, a university student, expressed her feelings, stating, "This is my first blood donation, and I feel very proud. I am happy that my blood can save someone's life. I urge everyone to donate blood, as it is a service to humanity."

A team of health experts was also present at the event, providing health advice related to blood donation. The experts explained that donating blood not only helps those in need but is also beneficial for the health of the donors.

Following this successful event, the university administration plans to organize similar blood donation camps in the future. They emphasized that blood donation should not be a one-time act. After the successful organization of the camp, the university has resolved to promote a culture of blood donation. Various programs will be held to raise awareness among students in this direction.

At the end of the program, all blood donors were awarded appreciation certificates. Chairperson Mrs. Mithilesh Garg mam expressed her gratitude to all participants, stating, "By participating in this camp, you have contributed significantly not only for yourselves but also for society." She also mentioned that similar programs would continue to be organized to raise awareness about blood donation and to address the issue of blood scarcity. @NSS Unnat Bharat Abhiyan

JAYOTI VIDYAPEETH WOMEN'S UNIVERSITY CELEBRATES GANDHI AND SHASTRI JAYANTI WITH CULTURAL SHOWCASE AND CLEANLINESS DRIVE

On October 2nd, Jayoti Vidyapeeth Women's University organized a grand event to celebrate the Jayanti of Mahatma Gandhi and Lal Bahadur Shastri as part of the Swachhta Hi Seva campaign. On this occasion, students showcased their talents through cultural dances, plays, and speeches, all aimed at raising awareness about cleanliness. The program was inaugurated by the university's Chairperson, Mrs. Mithilesh Garg, Advisor and CEO Mr. Vedant Garg, and Registrar Dr. Hema Bafila, who paid tribute to Mahatma Gandhi and Lal Bahadur Shastri by offering flowers. They reflected on the philosophies and contributions of these great leaders. In her opening speech, Mrs. Mithilesh Garg stated, "Celebrating the Jayanti of Mahatma Gandhi and Lal Bahadur Shastri is not just a ritual; it provides us an opportunity to remember their principles and the work they accomplished. Embracing the spirit of cleanliness and service is essential today." University Advisor and CEO Mr. Vedant Garg remarked that Mahatma Gandhi taught us that "cleanliness is not just a personal responsibility but the soul of society." In today's age, as we face technological and social challenges, this principle becomes even more significant. Cleanliness is not only about physical hygiene but also about the cleanliness of our thoughts and actions. Lal Bahadur Shastri always reminded us that challenges lie ahead, but we must transform them into opportunities. His slogan "Jai Jawan, Jai Kisan" teaches us that a healthy and clean environment is the foundation for societal progress. Following this, Registrar Dr. Hema Bafila emphasized that as we celebrate this cleanliness campaign, we must understand that it is not just a one-day affair. It is a continuous process.

We all need to be committed to spreading cleanliness around us. The students of the Fine Arts department showcased their creativity by using recyclable materials, such as paper, plastic, and old clothes, to create an inspiring portrait of Mahatma Gandhi. This artwork captured the attention of faculty and students alike and clearly conveyed the message of cleanliness. This special effort demonstrated that creativity and environmental protection can go hand in hand. The Fashion Design department also highlighted its talents on this occasion. Students crafted unique carry bags from old clothes and other waste materials. These handbags were not only visually appealing but also symbolized sustainable fashion. During the program, students presented various cultural performances, including classical dance, group songs, and a play that particularly drew everyone's attention. This play creatively illustrated the importance of cleanliness, conveying that cleanliness is not just an individual responsibility but essential for society as a whole. As part of the event, the NSS (National Service Scheme) team also conducted a cleanliness drive within the university. The aim of this campaign was to encourage students to take responsibility for cleanliness in their surroundings. NSS volunteers cleaned various parts of the campus and educated fellow students about the importance of cleanliness. The program concluded with all attendees collectively pledging to not only maintain their personal cleanliness but also inspire others to do the same. The university reinforced the message that cleanliness is not merely a task for one day but a continuous commitment to be embraced in everyday life.
